The parade this afternoon preceding the exercises in memory of the Confederate dead in Hollywood Cemetery, will have a martial air, such as has not been seen in Richmond on Memorial Day in many years. The Richmond Light Infantry Blues' Battalion, the Richmond Grays' Battalion, the Richmond Howitzers and the signal and hospital corps will participate.

This will be the first public appearance of the Grays in their new uniforms. The Blues will turn out in their well-known blue and white uniforms, while the members of the signal and hospital corps will appear in olive drab.

Brigadier-General W. B. Freeman, First Brigade, United Confederate Veterans, chief marshal of the parade, has issued orders for the military organizations, the army of police officers who will participate in the parade, to assemble this afternoon at 4 o'clock. ## HUTCHENS APPOINTED Made Division Collector of Internal Revenue, With Office at Newport News.

Collector of Internal Revenue, L. L. Moncreux, who recently succeeded M. K. Lowry, yesterday announced the first appointment since his assumption of office. Mr. Hutchens, of Newport News, has been appointed as a division deputy collector, in charge of the division comprising Newport News, Hampton, Williamsburg, Charles City, Elizabeth City, James City, New Kent, Warwick and York Counties. The headquarters of this division were formerly located in Williamsburg, but, on account of the large amount of internal revenue business in the city of Newport News, the division headquarters have been transferred to the latter city.

Mr. Hutchens succeeds John S. Charles, of Williamsburg, and will take charge of the office on July 1. Because of the large amount of business in this division, Collector Lowry gave very careful consideration to the number of applicants for the position, and Mr. Hutchens was finally selected.

Collector Moncreux said that he would probably announce other appointments within the next ten days or two weeks.

RICHMOND HAS ACCESS TO THREE LIBRARIES

While the City Provides No Municipal Collection, Literary Facilities Are Not Lacking.

VAST FIELD PROVIDED BY STATE

New Arents Library Has Been Well Received and Has Many Regular Patrons.

Although Richmond has no public library in the strict sense of the word, students and book lovers are not entirely without literary facilities. The State Library, the Rosemary Library and the new Arents Library are public libraries, though not under municipal control, and two of them offer books for the use of the city for a fee. Totally different from these are the State Law Library, which is the State Law Library.

The State Library, situated in the Capitol building, is open daily to the public between the hours of 9 o'clock in the morning and 7 o'clock at night, except on Sundays. Any person in the city has free access to the books on library shelves, and can obtain and read any volumes in the reading room without introduction. Books are loaned for a period of two weeks to any resident of the city who will comply with the simple formula of filling out an application card with the name of the particular book desired. The service is entirely free.

STATE LIBRARY CONTAINS ABOUT 100,000 VOLUMES

The State Library contains approximately 100,000 volumes, for the most part of a substantial and classical character. It is adding to its collection at the rate of 5,000 volumes annually. Of fiction the State Library contains all that is classified from English, American, French, German, Russian and other European authors. In modern fiction the collection is limited to the works of Virginia authors. The library is particularly strong in historical, biographical, and scientific books, some of which are of great value. It has most of the standard books of reference.

About 32,000 persons visit this library each year. About 8,000 volumes are annually loaned to the public and 25,000 supplied to visitors for use in the reading room.

The State Law Library, restricted wholly to books of law, contains approximately 20,000 volumes. It is open daily for free service to the lawyers of Richmond, and practically all the legal literature in the city makes up its facilities.

ARENTS LIBRARY IS FREE TO PUBLIC

The Arents Free Library, situated at 225 South Cherry Street, is housed in a beautiful building and has recently begun its service, with a limited collection of books. This library is open daily to the public between the hours of 1 o'clock in the afternoon and 9 o'clock at night, and on Sundays between 2 o'clock and 6 o'clock in the afternoon. Any one may enter the reading-room and use the books from the shelves or the forty-odd book-cases taken regularly by the library.

No fee is charged for taking books from the library. Any man, woman or child who fills out the application blank can become a regular borrower. Some of the books can be kept out for one week and some for two weeks. There are 7,000 volumes now in the library shelves, and the number is being constantly augmented. About one-half this number is made up of works of fiction, and the other half of the classic and the best of the "best sellers." There is a good collection of reference works and volumes on philosophy, religion, travel, history, geography, botany, music, science and books for children.

There are already 1,359 registered patrons. Almost 5,000 volumes were loaned from the library during March alone, promising an annual circulation of nearly 60,000 books.

The Rosemary Public Library, at Fourth and Franklin Streets, possesses a collection of about 10,000 volumes, a large portion of which are works of fiction. A low fee, designed to pay for the maintenance of the library, is charged. The library is generally used by subscribers, members, and its books have a large circulation. Its reading-room is free to the public.

VOTES FOR BOND ISSUE

North Richmond Will Spend $85,000 in Street, Water and Sewer Improvements.
Citizens of North Richmond yesterday voted for a bond issue of $85,000 for the improvement of streets and sewer laying of water, gas and sewer pipes, carrying the election by a vote of 45 to 3.

The improvements which are to be begun as soon as the bonds can be placed on the market, will be of a permanent character so that the pipes installed may be used as part of the city systems when the suburb is annexed. Until that time the Council of North Richmond will arrange to get its water supply from the city.

A municipal election, at which members of the North Richmond Town Council and the Mayor will be selected, will be held on June 9. It is said that several of the offices will be filled only after a hard fight.

COLORED TAG DAY

For Benefit of Aged Negroes and Children in Orphan Asylum.

She gave the child paregoric and whiskey. Three hours later it became ill, and seven hours later was dead. The nurse denied, then admitted giving the mixture. It is not believed she intended poisoning the baby.

Drought Finally Broken.
[Special to The Times-Dispatch.]

TRAINING SCHOOL FOR LAY WORKERS TO OPEN

Will Occupy Part of Presbyterian
Building—Has Secured Gymnasium for Extension Work.

The board of trustees of the training school for lay workers appointed by the Presbyterian General Assembly has effected a temporary organization, and has appointed subcommittees to secure a charter for the new school, outline a curriculum and select the faculty. The new school will occupy temporarily a room in the building of the Presbyterian Committee of Publication, on North Sixth Street, now in course of erection.

The school will make use also of the institutional building at South Fourth Street, recently occupied by the Y. W. C. A. as a gymnasium. This building has been placed at the disposal of the school by Miss Katharine H. Hayes, and gymnasium classes, right classes for working girls and boys, kindergarten classes, mothers' clubs and other forms of institutional work will be conducted in the building.

The outstanding course of study for the training school will be the English Bible and practical instruction in missions, young people's work and Sunday school methods, for lay workers, both men and women, to become assistants to pastors and mission workers at home and abroad. The institution will be a distinct addition to the educational work of the church, and while under church control, it will not be sectarian. Students of all denominations will be received and will find courses of study that will be practical and useful.

SOUNDS NOTE OF WARNING AGAINST IMPURE WATER

Rains After Prolonged Drought Will Cause Serious Menace, Says
State Board of Health.

A special warning against the dangers of polluted water with the rains which will follow the prolonged drought, was issued by the State Board of Health yesterday by the State Board of Health. "The prolonged dry spell from which we have suffered during the past few weeks," says the bulletin, "has resulted in the accumulation of a large amount of polluting material on the surface of the soil. While typhoid conditions in the State are excellent, there is great danger that following the heavy rains, a great amount of this polluting material will be carried into the water courses, and unless particular care is taken, users of water from the smaller towns and domestic supplies will suffer from dysentery and typhoid fever."

In the four or five towns using unpurified water from small streams the danger is particularly great, and special warnings will be sent to those towns for the protection of the citizens. The users of water from springs should also be particularly careful not to drink the spring water as long as it is muddy or milky from the surface washings, unless it has first been boiled. While the dangers to users of well water are not particularly great, they will be provided with a sound, tight top, in order that the dust and other filth which has accumulated on the top of the well during the drought, will not be washed into the well with the water.

"While well-protected springs and wells will not be affected by present conditions, the State Board is anxious to have a large number of health officers in Virginia, and calls upon for health officers to take the simple precautions necessary to protect his own family. The numerous publications which give detailed directions for protecting water supplies, which will be sent free to any one who will write for them to its office in Richmond."

The grass crop is seriously damaged, but the rain will be of great value to corn and trucking.

DESIGNS PRESENTED FOR TWO NEW PAVILIONS

Administrative Board Preparing to Enlarge Capacity of Pine Camp.

Designs for the new pavilions which it is proposed to erect at Pine Camp if the city takes over the tuberculosis sanatorium were laid before the Administrative Board yesterday by Architects Carnard & Johnston, who were commissioned by the board to prepare the plans. The designs were inspected by the board and Chief Health Officer Levy. No action will be taken until the Administrative Board is taken until the transfer of Pine Camp to the city is effected.

The Tuberculosis Camp Society, which operates Pine Camp, has offered to turn over the sanatorium to the city on condition that it add two pavilions capable of taking care of forty more patients, with a stop in addition to look favorably upon the offer, and will, in the event that Pine Camp is taken over, construct additional pavilions for tubercular consumptives. The colored and white divisions will be at some distance from each other, and will be operated separately. The designs of outbuildings have been prepared for 1914 an appropriation of $25,000 was included for the purchase of a city farm, upon which it is proposed to place the indigent tubercular patients. The Administrative Board or the Public Utilities Committee shall supervise the purchase and equipment of the farm. The board is silent on this point, and the board is waiting for the City Attorney to decide who shall spend the money.

As soon as the farm is established the poor will be transferred to it, leaving at the City Home only the colored consumptives. The board proposes to erect two pavilions on the Pine Camp farm, the colored tubercular patients. If this plan goes through, the City Home will become vacant, and the property will be in all probability be sold.

TWO CHILDREN ARE FOUND SLEEPING ON SAND PILE

George and Howard Mann Wander Far
From Home and Are Located by Police.

Overcome by an exceeding weariness, after they had wandered from their home, on North Twenty-eighth Street, through many unsheltered blocks, George and Howard Mann, aged eleven and seven years, respectively, fell asleep in a sand pile beneath the Seaboard Air Line Railway viaduct, at Eighteenth and Broad Streets, and were found last night at 10:45 o'clock by two policemen.

The little urchins were looked fast in each other's arms when the police came upon them, and their faces, in spite of the grime, smiled at the officers' hearts with a soft appeal. They lay in a rift between two piles of sand, arms and legs firmly entwined and faces to the sky, and they were so fast asleep that when the men looked and looked upon them they thought the children were dead. Only after they had been well shaken and had rubbed their eyes were the little fellows awakened, and when they didn't know where they were, Howard, the younger of the two, began to cry; but the elder boy sturdily refused to let his mother and his mother's younger as they were taken to the First Police Station.

"Howard got tired," said George in the little house, and he lay down in the sand and went to sleep. I couldn't get him up, and then I lay down, too, and I went to sleep. We were both tired, and Howard got some sleep in his head, and when the boys got tired they always want to go to sleep." He had on half a pair of suspenders, and hitched it up judiciously as he talked. Howard had on neither suspenders nor buttons, and his sleep had left him in such a state of dishevelment that the officers had to shelter him from the public gaze when they took him to the station. He refused to be comforted or more completely dressed, and said he wanted to go home. After some questioning, the officers found that the boys lived on Twenty-eighth Street, and Policemen Akers, who had come in during the conversation recognized them and offered to take them home. With a such hand he boarded a car, and Howard immediately fell asleep again.

ECONOMICAL
LIGHT WEIGHT SIX

$1575

Perfect in balance
and alignment;
running without unpleasant vibration.

That is the Studebaker SIX motor—(3½ x 5 inches)—a splendid example of the block casting type and the small-bore, long-stroke practice.

It has been called one of the most perfectly balanced motors in the world.

This balance is attained only through the Studebaker manufacturing methods, which specify the raw metals, make the castings, do the heat treating, machining and grinding—everything.

Economy and efficiency in the highest degree are the result.

Smaller gasoline consumption than a "Four" of same displacement; actually more usable power, because of continuous torque.

No annoying vibration; smooth running; alignment permanent, because all cylinders are cast in one piece.

Care and closeness in manufacturing balance; light weight; economy and easy riding—these are the symbols of the Studebaker SIX.
